

Stephanie (Owner and creator)

Stephanie moved to Seattle a decade ago for esthetics school, and after 12 years she has built a following with her results-driven treatments, straightforward approach, meticulous practices and a deep commitment to serving her clients.

She loves art, science, psychology and is a curious creature to her core. She stepped into the role as a business owner when she opened Sapien Aesthetics in 2017, and has been determined to solve the problems ever since, both for her clients and employees. Stephanie is a lifelong nerd and continually seeks the best science, information, mentors, skills and tools in order to serve to the clients she adores.

When she's not at work you can find her wandering around the city, hitting up local parks and museums along the way.
